Craig Romano has hiked every corner of the Evergreen State, logging more than 19,000 miles on the trail, from the San Juan Islands to the Salmo-Priest Wilderness, the Canadian border to the Columbia River Gorge. Craig writes for Hikeoftheweek.com and a long list of outdoor publications and tourism websites including VisitRainier.com. Craig has more than a dozen books to his credit. His Columbia Highlands: Exploring Washington's Last Frontier was recognized in 2010 as a Washington Reads book for its contribution to the state's cultural heritage.

This is my 16th book in the Day Hiking series (including New England). Have explored many new trails that I probably wouldn't have done if I would have bought the book taking me to trails away from the crowds.Love that I can look up a hike in the At Glance section of the book and see what hikes satisfy what I'm looking for. The hikes are all nicely grouped with elevation, milage, directions, and what passes/maps I need.I love that the 2nd Edition didn't just update trails that were in the first book, but also has other trails that were not in the first book.If you want to explore the Olympic Peninsula - This is it

This is a great book in a great series. The author truly knows and appreciates WA State.
