Customer Reviews

Of all the super edition books, this was probably my least favorite. There just wasn't a whole lot of action. Anyway, when Melanie's dad wins a trip to the Barbados (from being the best salesman at his job) he and his family are thrilled! Then Mel manages to get all the Fab Five to come and they set out Christmas Day to spend a whole week of fun in the sun! All the girls have boyfriends back home and they certainly don't plan on meeting guys, but things change when they get a load of Marco Montavo, the charming, handsome singer at the villa they are staying out. (he's a jerk!) He's bored on the island where 'nothing exciting happens', so he decides to have some fun by getting all the girls interested in him. His flirting charms work and soon all the girls have a crush on him (even Katie!) But they figure things out in the end and get revenge! I really did like this book, it's just that they spent all their time running around secretly meeting Marco. I'm glad they wised up and realized what great guys they have back home. =)

Foolish...they have the opportunity to explore things and maybe have an real adventure, but instead their adventure is meeting this "gorgeous" singer and of course, falling in love with him. And Marco, being conceited, strings the five of them along during the whole vacation. Naturally, they have boyfriends back home. The one good part was when they finally wise up and cook up a delicious plan to get back at Marco.

I don't know what was the problem of the guy below, but this book was another great installment in the Fabulous Five series. I read it and loved it as a kid. Probably wouldn't like it if you're a 40 year-old reviewer!
