Vonne Martin graduated from the Medical College of Virginia in 1975 and worked for twenty years as a critical care nurse. She loves all animals and all types of sports. Her hobbies include scuba diving, going on safari, photography, reading, cooking, and her wonderful dogs (not necessarily in that order). Martin became interested in photography and tried to re-create the wonders she saw underwater. She has always tried to capture the natural, raw beauty and dangers of life, to become one with marine life and with the animals of southern Africa. She believes that photographs are pathways to our memories and remind us of what is important in our lives. Through her photographs, she seeks to share her experiences with those who can't experience the adventures she has been blessed to enjoy and hopes that she can inspire them to embark on such adventures themselves.

Vonne's photography captures the untamed beauty and richness of the African wilderness. The book is lovingly written as it describes the animals and their behaviors. She shares her passion and respect for nature through the art of photography and video. Martin emphasizes the impact of human interference on these remarkable critters. Her book is dedicated to make people aware of the plight of these animals and save these animals from destruction. The book is perfect for both children and adults. It makes a beautiful book to read to a child or to an adult.

After spending some time with Vonne Martin and listening to her talk about her love for Africa's plains and it's wildlife, I knew I had to get her illustrated book on Southern Africa. Sitting down and going thru the pages of this very descriptive, picturesque book brought her journey there to life for me. Her photography of the numerous animals of the southern plains and the detailed descriptions of each was way beyond anything I could have expected in leafing through a book such as this. Southern Africa sits on my coffee table at home and has been enjoyed by everyone who spends time with me there. You won't be disappointed if you choose to purchase one for yourself!Shirley DillamanOwner, MINT, A Boutique Spa
