Coming Home

Synopsis

Coming home is a heart-warming novel about family and relationships. It interweaves humour and loss in a poignant, amusing story, laced with love. It will make you laugh, cry and appreciate life. The last place Jocelyn Harrold wanted to be was back in the city where she was born. After moving away for a fresh start she was home to attend the funeral of her beloved Nan who had recently passed. She was dreading spending the time with her family and all the unwelcome memories that would bring. During her visit, love and life begins to blossom again. When greeted with a new bombshell can she risk her sanity and find the strength for a second chance at family life and love.

Customer Reviews

a nice easy read...didn't get all complicated and confusing. Am so glad that Joy and her first love finally came together, but would have liked it to have lasted a little bit longer...sort of prolong the story...but good nonetheless

I liked this story and the characters in it. I also found that I liked joy even more because she actually saw Lucy when others didn't.

This is a really good read. It is complex in the issues that need resolving but one. She never tries to find her first love and determine what really happened. Teresa is a good writer and a gifted storyteller. The story flowed easily and logically. I didn't want it to end.
