

The book was found

Created Equal: A History Of The United States, Brief Edition, Combined Volume (3rd Edition)

Synopsis

Explores American History through the theme of equality. With its inclusive view of American history, Created Equal, Brief Edition emphasizes social history—including the lives, labors, and legacies of women, immigrants, working people, and minorities in all regions of the country while delivering the fundamental elements of political and economic history. In the new edition of Created Equal, the authors have preserved the chronological framework and strong narrative thread, the engaging and illuminating stories of everyday people and events, and the Interpreting History features of the previous edition, but have sharpened the presentation, prose, and pedagogy by incorporating additional examples and end of chapter review material.

Book Information

Paperback: 800 pages

Publisher: Pearson; 3 edition (July 31, 2010)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 0205728901

ISBN-13: 978-0205728909

Product Dimensions: 8.5 x 1 x 10.9 inches

Shipping Weight: 3.2 pounds

Average Customer Review: 3.9 out of 5 stars 87 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #201,683 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #359 in Books > History > Americas > United States > Colonial Period #1834 in Books > Textbooks > Humanities > History > United States

Customer Reviews

"If you want an excellent textbook that emphasizes the political and social currents of survey U.S. history - this one is for you." Thomas J. Rowland, University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh " . . . attention to new scholarship that ensures that its narrative of the history of the United States is reflective of the many voices and events that shaped the nation's past and continue to assist in defining its current status." Cynthia Neverdon-Morton, Coppin State University

Jacqueline Jones teaches American history at the University of Texas at Austin, where she is Mastin Gentry White Professor of Southern History and Walter Prescott Webb Chair in History and Ideas. She was born in Christiana, Delaware, a small town of 400 people in the northern part of the state. The local public school was desegregated in 1955, when she was a third grader. That event, combined with the peculiar social etiquette of relations between blacks and whites in the town, sparked her interest in American history. She attended the University of Delaware in nearby Newark and went on to graduate school at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, where she received her Ph.D. in history. Her scholarly interests have evolved over time, focusing on labor, women's, African American, and southern history. In 1999 she received a MacArthur Fellowship. One of her biggest challenges has been to balance her responsibilities as teacher, historian, wife, and mother (of two daughters). She is currently working on a book of essays that illustrate, through the biographies of several individuals, the fluidity of racial ideologies in America, from the colonial period to the present. She is the author of several books, including Saving Savannah: The City and the Civil War (2008); Soldiers of Light and Love: Northern Teachers and Georgia Blacks (1980); Labor of Love, Labor of Sorrow: Black Women, Work, and Family Since Slavery (1985), which won the Bancroft Prize and was a finalist for a Pulitzer Prize; The Dispossessed: America's Underclasses Since the Civil War (1992); and American Work: Four Centuries of Black and White Labor (1998). In 2001 she completed a memoir that recounts her childhood in Christiana: Creek Walking: Growing Up in Delaware in the 1950s. Peter H. Wood was born in St. Louis (before the famous arch was built). He recalls seeing Jackie Robinson play against the Cardinals, visiting the courthouse where the Dred Scott case originated, and traveling up the Mississippi to Hannibal, birthplace of Mark Twain. Summer work on the northern Great Lakes aroused his interest in Native American cultures, past and present. He studied at Harvard (B.A., 1964; Ph.D., 1972) and at Oxford, where he was a Rhodes Scholar (1964-1966). His pioneering book Black Majority (1974), concerning slavery in colonial South Carolina, won the Beveridge Prize of the American Historical Association. He taught early American history at Duke University from 1975 to 2008. The topics of his articles range from the French explorer LaSalle to Gerald Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon. He coedited Powhatan's Mantle: Indians in the Colonial Southeast, now in its second edition. His demographic essay in that volume provided the first clear picture of population change in the eighteenth-century South. His most recent books are Strange New Land: Africans in Colonial America (2003), Weathering the Storm: Inside Winslow Homer's "Gulf Stream" (2004), and "Near Andersonville": Winslow Homer's Civil War (2010). Dr. Wood has served on the boards of the Highlander Center, Harvard University, Houston's Rothko Chapel, the Menil Foundation, and the Institute of Early American History and Culture in Williamsburg. He is married to colonial historian Elizabeth Fenn; his varied interests include archaeology, documentary film, and growing gourds. He keeps a baseball bat used by Ted Williams beside his desk. Thomas (â œTimâ •) Borstelmann, the son of a university psychologist, taught and coached at the elementary and high school levels in Washington state and Colorado before returning to graduate school. From 1991 to 2003, he taught American history at Cornell University while living in Syracuse, New York, before becoming the Elwood N. and Katherine Thompson Distinguished Professor of Modern World History at the University of Nebraska. Lincoln. He lives with his wife, a health care administrator, and two sons in Lincoln. An avid bicyclist, runner, swimmer, and cross-country skier, he earned his B.A. from Stanford University in 1980 and Ph.D. from Duke University in 1990. He became a historian to figure out the Cold War and American race relations, in part because he had grown up in the South. His first book, concerning American relations with southern Africa in the mid-twentieth century, won the Stuart L. Bernath Book Prize of the Society for Historians of Foreign Relations. His second book, The Cold War and the Color Line, appeared in 2001. His commitment to the classroom earned him a major teaching award at Cornell, the Robert and Helen Appel Fellowship. He found writing Created Equal a natural complement to what he does in the classroom, trying to provide both telling details of the American past and the broad picture of how the United States has developed as it has. A specialist in U.S. foreign relations and modern world history, he is equally fascinated with domestic American politics and social change. He is currently working on a book about the United States and the world in the 1970s. In 2011 Dr. Borstelmann will publish his next book, entitled More Equal, Less Equal: Egalitarianism, Market Values, and the Reshaping of America and the World in the 1970s

Its a textbook. I'm not going to lie, its pretty stale reading. I love history and this just does not spark my interest. I give it three stars though because I was able to purchase a Kindle copy which makes finding things much easier by using the search tool. I also love that I can use my iPad for the book and my computer to type up homework. had a really good price considering buying these textbooks is usually outrageous. I love the option to rent since resell value for textbooks is horrible and I'll never use it again after this class.

Fine.

Needed for class. WAS A MUST.

A typical bad American history textbook. Not worth reading unless you have to.

I had purchased this ebook so that I could use it on my computer, but when I tried to open it I was unable to because it was not compatible with Windows 8. I was not happy at all to find out about this, as I feel I wasted $50 for a book I can't even use for my class.

excellent price for this book although i did manage to find it cheaper elsewhere

Used this textbook for my history class. The book is pretty informative. I learned a lot of things that i had not known about history. Thanks to this book, i was able to pass the class.

The book was in great condition, there were a few markings in it but nothing that hindered my reading. I bought it for my history class yet held on to it to re read because it was full of historical events that were very interesting.

Download to continue reading...

Created Equal: A History of the United States, Brief Edition, Combined Volume (3rd Edition) World History, Ancient History, Asian History, United States History, European History, Russian History, Indian History, African History. (world history) The American Promise, Value Edition, Combined Volume: A History of the United States Taking Sides: Clashing Views in United States History, Volume 2: Reconstruction to the Present (Taking Sides. Clashing Views in United States History (2 Vol Set)) Western Civilizations: Their History & Their Culture (Brief Fourth Edition) (Vol. Combined Volume) Ways of the World: A Brief Global History with Sources, Combined Volume United States History: Beginnings to 1877 2013 (Holt McDougal United States History) World History: Ancient History, United States History, European, Native American, Russian, Chinese, Asian, African, Indian and Australian History, Wars including World War 1 and 2 [3rd Edition] Sitting for Equal Service: Lunch Counter Sit-Ins, United States, 1960s (Civil Rights Struggles Around the World) Look Before You LIRP: Why All Life Insurance Retirement Plans Are Not Created Equal, and How to Find the Right One for You West,The: A Narrative History, Combined Volume (3rd Edition) The Republic for Which It Stands: The United States during Reconstruction and the Gilded Age, 1865-1896 (Oxford History of the United States) History and Culture of Dominican Republic, Government, Politics Economy, Tourism: Migration, The First Colony, Occupation by the United States 1916-24, Civil War and United States Intervention, 1965 A Nation Without Borders: The United States and Its World in an Age of Civil Wars, 1830-1910 (The Penguin History of the United States) A Narco History: How the United States and Mexico Jointly Created the â œMexican Drug Warâ • National Geographic Guide to National Parks of the United States, 8th Edition (National Geographic Guide to the National Parks of the United States) A Guide Book of United States Coin 2018: The Official Red Book, Large

Print Edition (Guide Book of United States Coins) Handbook of United States Coins 2017: The Official Blue Book, Paperbook Edition (Handbook of United States Coins (Paper)) Latin America and Its People, Combined Volume (3rd Edition) 1,000 Places to See in the United States and Canada Before You Die (1,000 Places to See in the United States & Canada Before You)

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help